

Carthage : Friday 25th November at 10<sup>H</sup>.00

This residential and opulent small town is rising on the vestiges of one of the most glorious cities in the antiquity, established by the Phoenicians in the ninth century before J.C, destroyed, then reconstructed by the Romans to become one of the most brilliant capital of the province of their empire.

Sidi Bou Saïd : Saturday 26th November at 10<sup>H</sup>.00

Mixing simplicity and refinement, civilized architecture and wild nature, Sidi Bou Said site is always charming. It's a village wholly painted in blue and white, where the Tunisian inhabitants used to spend their holidays, situated on a hill slope facing a limpid blue sea.

The Medina : Saturday 26th November at 15<sup>H</sup>.00

The historical core of Tunis has conserved its general appearance for more than five hundred years, and many buildings from the seventieth and ninetieth centuries. Tortuous alleys, arched passages, beautiful gates framed with sculpted stones give a disorientated physiognomy to that urban set classified by the UNESCO as a humanity heritage.
